Behavioral Health

Purpose-built for human services environments — something retail furniture simply can't offer.

Renewable furniture is designed to extend the life of seating by allowing worn or damaged components—such as arms, cushions, fabric, legs, or even the chair base—to be replaced instead of discarding the entire piece. This supports durability, cost control, and sustainability while minimizing disruption to day-to-day operations.

Built for high-use settings like behavioral health, supportive housing, and IDD programs, Butler furniture features strong hardwood and Baltic Birch frames, high-density foams that maintain comfort over time, and moisture barriers that protect from liquids, supporting hygiene and infection-control needs. Components are easy to access and repair or replace on-site, often with a single tool.

The result: longer-lasting furniture, lower lifetime costs, and a more responsible, practical solution for environments where reliability matters most.

Our products are engineered to withstand continuous use in residential treatment, inpatient, and outpatient settings while supporting a calm, respectful, and therapeutic environment.

Butler vs. Retail

Butler Furniture offers higher-quality, longer-lasting furniture, made with better materials, by experienced craftsmen. Butler has both a customer service and a warranty department. Most retail furniture stores or mass market suppliers don't offer either.

- Built with more durable materials and construction, designed to last
- Offers greater customization and personal support, and installation
- Provides better long-term value by reducing replacement and maintenance costs

Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities (IDD)

For IDD providers, furniture must be exceptionally durable, safe, and adaptable to a wide range of abilities and behaviors. Butler Human Services designs products that support daily living environments while prioritizing strength, ease of maintenance, and long-term performance.

Our warranties are built to support group homes and community residences where furniture is used intensively every day. This helps providers maintain consistent, supportive environments while managing operational costs responsibly.

How Butler can help in the fight against bed bugs.

Bed bugs are a serious issue. To help combat this problem, Butler has created metal beds and bed bug resistant mattresses with features to help keep residents comfortable and free from pests.

- Inverted stitched seams minimize hiding places that can harbor bed bugs.
- No brass vents which permit bed bug access to mattress interior.
- Nylon fluid and tear resistant mattress cover.
- Easy clean powder coat finishes.
- Lenox, Mason, and Fusion beds feature sealed surface bed frames that eliminate hiding places that harbor bed bugs.
- Toolless assembly with exterior hooks for easy setup.

What is the STURDY Act?

The STURDY Act makes safety testing related to furniture tip-overs mandatory. The rigorous testing simulates real-world use and conditions. The Act took effect in the fall of 2023, and The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) actively enforces the standard.

Butler Human Services® Legacy, Merit, Classic, and Endure Collections are STURDY Act compliant and have been tested in an independent lab to pass the ASTM (American Society for Testing and Materials) standards required by STURDY.

Your Butler Human Services Rep can help when selecting STURDY-compliant products. Learn more at ButlerHumanServices.com/STURDY.
