Create Spaces That Help People Feel Safe, Comfortable, and at Home

Every piece of furniture in your program supports the work you do—helping residents rebuild stability, protecting your staff's time, and making the most of limited budgets.

Whether you're furnishing supportive housing, a group home, emergency shelter, or transitional living program, you need furniture that's durable enough for everyday use while creating a welcoming environment where people can thrive.

At Butler Human Services, we help organizations like yours furnish spaces that are comfortable practical, and built to last.

Designed Around the Challenges You Face

Your Priority	How We Help
Creating a welcoming home-like space	Comfortable, attractive furniture that promotes dignity without sacrificing durability.
Managing tight budgets	Long-lasting furniture reduces replacement costs and stretches funding further.
Supporting a busy staff	Delivery, assembly, placement, and cleanup help save valuable staff time.
Keeping facilities clean and safe	Easy-to-clean materials and bed bug resistant options help simplify maintenance.
Furnishing multiple homes or programs	Consistent product lines make it easy to furniture one location—or many—with the same quality and style.

Furniture That Works as Hard as You Do

When you're responsible for resident care, furniture shouldn't become another problem to solve.

Our products are designed specifically for high-use residential environments with features including:

- Solid wood construction
- Steel welded bed frames
- Hardwood drawer boxes
- English dovetail drawer boxes
- Double drawer fronts
- Bed bug resistant beds and mattresses
- Easy-to-clean finishes and fabrics

Solutions for Every Space and Program Backed by a 5–25 Year Warranty

Unlike retail furniture—and many competitors—our products are built for the demands of human services environments and backed by a warranty that protects your investment. Each product is warrantied for 5–25 years, giving your organization long-term confidence, fewer replacement concerns, and dependable support after the purchase.

- Solid hardwood and plywood frames with dovetail-joint construction
- No-sag springs and high-density compression foam for comfort and longevity
- Reversible cushions to extend lifespan
- Anti-microbial, stain-resistant, urine-resistant fabrics
- Commercial-grade finishes designed for heavy use
- Five- to twenty-five year warranty, depending on the product, for peace of mind

That long-term warranty is part of what sets Butler Human Services apart. With more than 1,000 fabric and vinyl options, multiple wood finishes, and a wide selection of seating and bedroom collections, you can create spaces that reflect your organization's mission—without sacrificing durability, value, or peace of mind.

A Partner From Planning to Installation

You already have enough on your plate.

Our team works alongside you to simplify the process—from selecting furniture that fits your program and budget to coordinating delivery and installation.

We can assist with:

- Furniture selection
- Space planning
- CAD layouts
- Budget guidance
- Delivery scheduling
- Professional installation

So your staff can stay focused on supporting residents—not assembling furniture.

Helping You Create Spaces To Support Healing and Stability

Whether you're opening a new residence, renovating an existing program, or standardizing furniture across multiple locations, Butler Human Services Furniture can help you create safe, comfortable environments that support both residents and staff.
